The mob who attended the funeral numbered fully 5,000 attended the funeral numbered fully 5,000. At the headquarters of the society to which Lou belonged and at the cemetery the police were utterly unable to cope with the crowd, consisting of richly dressed ladies and gentlemen, as well as hoodlums, who vied with each other in attempts to see what was going on. The crowd seemed to think that it was a circus and the religious rites were omitted at the grave on account of their unruliness. The funeral itself was one of the most imposing ever held in Chinese circles in the city and the Chinese feel they have been ill-treated by the populace. The procession was over a mile iong.

Congregation of St. John Nepomuk Suffers Severely Through the Priest's Desire to Make Money Rapidly.

Rev. Peter Houst, until quite recently assistant pastor of St. John de Nepomuk's Bohemian Catholic Church, Eleventh and Soulard streets, has mysteriously disappeared, leaving a number of creditors among his former parishioners, one of whom is said to have been the immediate cause of the priest's departure, by threatening to shoot him if he did not pay what he owed. To just what extent his departure will be mourned has not yet developed.

Father Houst came to St. Louis in 1884 from Louisville, where he had remained at the Franciscan Monastery. Important Legal Decision Concerning American Patents.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The case of the State Refrigerator Company against Francis Suizberger & Co., upon which rested the question of American patents, expiring when foreign patents have been previously issued, was decided to-day in an exhaustive opinion by Justice Harian. It is estimated that not less than $500,000,000 of capital hinges upon the decision, which determines the status of many valuable patents.

The court held that the invention for which Bate received a patent was previously patented in a foreign country, and that the United States patent expired with the foreign ones. The decision is against the electrical patents involved in the suit.

The domestic felicity of the Belloir family has simply gone to the dogs. It's bad enough to have one elopement in a family, but when this interesting event comes double no wonder there is gnashing of teeth This is exactly what has happened to Eugene and Adolph Belloir. Their respec him their troubles. They wanted warrants for their recreant wives, but as they are not in the city this baim for their angry feelings was refused them.

Some years ago there came over to this country from Normandy a lot of the sturdy peasantry of that province, and a number of them settled near St. Louis out on what is now the Weber road, just outside the present city limits. Among them were the two brothers, Adolph and Eugene Belloir. They settled there and married not so very long ago either, and to each of them was born a child.

They were very happy in their simple farmer way, but by and by there came a time when domestic quarrels clouded their lives and their dream of married life was sadly broken.

Matters went so far that last January Adolph's wife concluded that she could live no longer with her husband and sued him for a divorce. But Adolph was not willing to give up trying yet, and he bought his wife's love back again with $100. For this sum she consented to withdraw her suit.

this wite's love back again with sun. For this sum she consented to withdraw her suit.

And now how bitterly does the poor man rue that day, for he thinks he can clearly see a connection between that sum of money and his present ionely state.

And Eugene, too, who his been deserted, iccks back at an occurence along in the August of 1898, and taps his nose with his finger and draws conclusions.

In that month of that year 3700 which he had concealed in an old tin can in the cellar of his house was mysteriously stolen. No one but the wife knew that it was there. No trace of the thief has ever been found. Eugene now, however, has his thoughts and these are that his wife. Louise, was even then planning the denouement which has just been revealed.

Anyway whether there be any connection between these things and what has now happened or not, matters have been very unpleasant out on the Weber road for a long time.

About three weeks ago Louise Adolph's PARKERSBURG, W, Va., March 3.—
Gustavus Weyrich, a young man of Marietta, who has declared his love for and been rejected several times by Miss Bertha Irving, a very bright and attractive young lady, visited Miss Irving last night and renewed his suit. The young lady again rejected Weyrich, who threatened to commit suicide. He asked her to get him a glass of water, and while she was absent swallowed an ounce of laudanum. When the young woman returned she found Weyrich lying on the floor in a dying condition.

About three weeks ago Louise Adolph's wife disappeared, and with her went August Lemoyne, Adolph's hired man, and a brother to Euphrasia. Eugene's wife.

There was muttering and cursing in Norman French between the Belioir brothers, but Eugene had his wife left, anyway, and so Adolph said very little loud enough for the tongue of gossip to take it up and spread it to the winds.

Last Friday, however, the last blow fell. On this morning Eugene awoke to find Euphrasia gone, and with her Frank Le Petit, another of the Normans, who had come with the whole party to America.

Le Petit left behind a 17-year-old wife and one child to mourn his perfudy.

When this news was brought to Adolph by his brother they took a vow. They had little money, but they swore that they would put it all together and search the country over until they found the men who had robbed them and the women who had disgraced them.

Their whman neighbors all sympathized with them and talked scandalously about the missing people, but what to do they did not know until word of the occurrence came to John B. The streets of the city were strewn with the bodies of the killed. The powder magazine was blown up and many houses in the city were shattered. Special to The Post-Dispatch.

BURLINGTON JUNCTION, March 4.—
The black small-pox in a very malignant form is raging in Maryville, County seat of Nodaway County, setteen miles from Burlington Junction. The disease was Burlington Junction. The disease was brought from Hot Springs, Ark., by the corpse of a citizen of Maryville, who was under treatment at Hot Springs for skin disease. The coffin was opened at his father's house and again at the funeral, at the church, which was largely attended. There was no suspicion of the disease until the family of the deceased was attacked. Yesterday twenty cases were reported, and schools were closed and the city was quarantined. The authorities are taking every possible means to prevent the spread of the disease. A sister of the deceased, living near Arko, is one of the victims of the analady. No fatality is reported yet.

abeth Broyles of this city committed suicide Friday evening at Caldwell, Kan. The body arrived yesterday, and was taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. William Forgie of 2056 North Seventh street.

Miss Broyles was a professional nurse, 25 years of age. She was staying at Caddwell with relatives by the name of Clark. Friday afternoon she went to her room in a despondent mood, gathered all of her letters and burned them. She mixed a drink of carbolic acid and sugar, dressed herself for a walk and then swallowed the poison. She quickly walked from the house, saying no word of parting to anyone. She had hardly walked two blocks when she fell to the ground. Friends rushed to her side and carried her into a neighboring house, where she died.

Miss Broyles was engaged to William Cahill, a contractor of St. Louis for three years, but the marriage had been postponed several times by her own request. Her relatives do not think that her act was connected in any way with her love affair, as a letter received by her sweetheart last Tuesday told him that she loved him more than her own life. Mr. Cahill called at the house yesterday, and his grief was most pitiful.

Samuel Gompers Delivers an Oration Over Meyer Dampf.

NEW YORK, March 4 .- One of the most impressive funeral ceremonies ever witnessed in this city took place yesterday at Clarendon Hall. Meyer Dampf lay in state guarded by his comrades in arms, the members of Geilsa Post, G. A. R. Strangely enough, one of his pall-bearers, the Commander of his post, Col. A. Seifert, Sceretary of the Brewers' pool, represented the principle against which Dampf had fought resolutely for so many years. The Central Labor Union passed resolutions of regret, Mr. Dampf having been for many years Treasurer of that body, and then adjourned to attend the funeral ceremonies. The platform was occupied by labor leaders and the hall filled with members of the various labor organizations. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, made an oration, in which he paid a high compliment to the deceased's courage and generalship. He said; "In the struggle of labor against wrongs, which are the growth of generations, he was ever ready to place his valor on the side of justice. May his life be an example that we may emulate in order to bring success to the movement with which he was identified." balm for their angry state guarded by his comrades in arms.

"It seldom does what the Senator from Florida pleases, but always what it pleases," added Mr. Harris.

Then the Senators passed into inaction, waiting for the concluding hour to arrive.

important work done in the Sunday session was the agreement by each to the report of the Conference Com-House to the report of the Conference Committee on the Wolcott amendment to the sundry civil bill, providing for the selection of delegates to the proposed International Monetary Conference. The amendment as it came from the Senate provided that there should be nine delegates—three to be chosen by the Senate, three by the House and three by the President. The Conference Committee changed this by taking from the President the power of naming any of the delegates. As the provision stands now, the Senate choses three delegates, the Speaker of the House three and the six so selected name the three additional delegates.

Speaker of the House three and the six so selected name the three additional delegates.

The silver men feared that a combination of Republicans and Cleveland Democrats would name the three delegates for the House and leave out the silver Democrats. Other important Senate amendments to the civil bill were stricken out in conference: For the purchase of the Blaine property in Washington; to enable the Government to participate in the proposed Nashville Centennial Exposition, and appropriating $125,000 for that purpose; for the cost and charges of State penitentiarles and striking out the House provision that money expended for the maintenance of military convicts "shall be expended in the current support of military convicts," leaving the provision as it came from the House; 'so, from the Senate amendment striking it the provision for the transformation of the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., into a United States penitentiary, leaving-the provision as originally made by the House. He was for free silver but he believed it the height of folly for the United States to refuse-to Join hands with other countries of the world if they were ready and willing to Join in the scheme for the remonetization of silver.

Mr. Dingley (Rep.) of Maine agreed with Mr. Grosvenor, contending with European bimetallism that the single attempt of any country-the United States, France or Germany—to open its mints to the free coinage of silver would swamp it and place it immediately on a silver basis.

Mr. Walker (Rep.) of Massachusetts, Wanger (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, and Simpson (Pop.) of Kansas, crowded in a few words before the debate was cut off, and at 16 o'clock Mr. Dockery moved a recess until 11 o'clock. Mr. Simpson raised the point of no quorum.

Meantime the visitors had poured into the galleries until they were packed. On the floor all was confusion. Members chatted and laughed and bid each other good by. Finally Mr. Simpson surrendered, and a recess was taken until 11 o'clock.

At 11 o'clock, when the House reconvened, the noise in the galleries and the confusion on the floor cased.

The usual committee, consisting of Messrs. Catchings of Mississippi, Outhwaite of Ohio and Reed of Maine were appointed to join a similar committee from the Senate ready to adjourn.

The Speaker appointed Messrs, Rusk of Maryland, Meredith of Virginia and Coffin of Maryland, the Committee of Accounts refusing to serve during the recess.

by the Senate. WASHINGTON, March 4.—Com WASHINGTON, March 4.—Comparatively few Presidential nominees were allowed to fail this session for want of action by the Senate. The list of failures includes twenty-five or thirty Postmasters and the following: David G. Brown, to be Collector of Customs for the district of Montana and Idaho; J. R. Herod, to be First Secretary of the Legation to Japan.

Ten or a dozen of the Postmaster's nominees are in the State of New York, some of which were made on the first day of the session, and were held back on the request of Senator Hill until the last executive session last night, when he withdrew his request and allowed them to be favorably acted upon.

MEN FOR $62 AN HOUR.

Leaders in Business Who Have Inc. of $50,000 a Year.

From the New York Journal.

Fifty thousand dollars a year! Think of Four thousand one hundred and sixty-six dollars and sixty-seven cents a month, $1,041.67 a wek, $148.81 a day, $62 an hour and a little more than $1.03 a minute.

That is the salary received by each of a number of well-known men in this country. A recent dispatch from Raleigh, N. C., is to the effect that Will W. Fuller of Durham, N. C., who already has the largest income received by any lawyer in the State, has been engaged as counsel by the American Tobacco Co. of this city at a salary of $50,000 per annum.

That amount is more than the average man earns in a lifetime. It would be a fortune to many.

The President of the United States, the Chief Magistrate of the nation, does not receive a greater remuneration for his services, with all the responsibility which that impiles.

In fact, $50,000 per annum is regarded as ices, with all the responsibility which that implies.

In fact, $50,000 per annum is regarded as the high-water mark at which man's service can be valued individually in this country. And yet it is surprising to note the number of prominent officials in this city alone who draw this amount annually, over and above their incomes resultant from other financial transactions. Very truly is it said: "To him that hath shall be given."

Almost without exception the recipients of enormous salaries are men already wealthy, or at least, entirely independent in their circumstances.

wealthy, or at least, entirely independent in their circumstances.

The services of Chauncey Depew, as Pres-ident of the New York Central, are valued at $50,000 a year. Rather than risk losing this snug annual income Mr. Depew politely declined an invitation to become amember of President Harrison's cabinet.

Henry B. Hyde, President of the Equita-ble Life Assurance Society, receives a like amount. amount.

President John A. McCall, of the New York Life, and Richard A. McCurdy, President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, draw $100,000 a year between them in salaries alone from their respective corporations.

Among others whose time is worth $62 an hour yearly, are President Thomas T. Eckert, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, Henry O. Havemeyer, President of the American Sugar Refining Company, commonly known as the "Sugar Trust," and President Roberts of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

and President Hoberts of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Among the ministers of the Gospel the Rev. Dr. John Hall of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, commands the highest salary. He gets $35,000 a year, all of which is devoted to charity.

The Rev. William S. Rainsford-comes next, with a salary of $25,000. His time and money are equally distributed among the parishioners, with the exception of an occasional indulgence in his proclivities as a huntsman.

The presidents of several of the big trust companies receive $35,000 a year each, and J. Edward Simmons, President of the Fourth National Bank, who is a conspicuous figure in the financial world as the leader among the new school of bankers.

leader among the new school of bankers, receives the same amount.

Jay Gould's physician, Dr. Munn, has been for several years in receipt of an annual salary of $30,000 from the Gould family.

On the turf, where money is not money until after the day is over, enormous sums are paid the leading jockeys. Fred Tarai, for instance, receives a retainer of $18,000 from the Keenes for one year's services. This amount is probably doubled by the emoluments and perquisites which accompany his position.

Jockey Harry Griffin, who is but 16 years old gets a retainer of $1,000 for each year he has lived, from Messrs. Gideon & Daly, besides fees paid him by others for the privilege of having second or third call upon his services.

POLITICS AND BABY-KISSING.

An Interesting Controversy on the Other Side of the Ses.

Mr. Elliott Lees, says Mr. Labouchere in ondon Truth, has written to me in defense

Mr. Elliott Lees, says Mr. Labouchere in London Truth, has written to me in defense of his distribution of Christmas cards in his constituency, and also, as I understand him, in defense of baby-missing. I really do not think that the Christmas card question is worth arguing, except in the interest of stationers, who will certainly benefit if every voter in our 63 Parliamentary constituencies is to receive one of these compliments from his member. But on the baby question, Mr. Lees' views ought to be known in Birkenhead. He says:

"But why compare me to Mr. Slumkey kissing washed bables at Eatanswill? Personally, I like kissing clean bables, but I know that, in this respect, my taste is rather exceptional, and, therefore, I should refrain from gratifying it in my constituency for fear of being misunderstood."

Surely Mr. Lees does himself an injustice in this. I really think he must be well enough known in Birkenhead to be able to kiss a strange baby without being misunderstood. I hope, now that the honorable member's taste is known, bables will be provided for his occulation. Only, please note they must be clean, and let there be no mis-understandings.

Too Sudden.

From the Boston Transcript.

He: "Dear Clara, will you be my wife?"

She: "Harry, I have tried every sort of way to bring to you a proposal. I have experimented with the baby stare, reckoned by my friends as particularly fetching; I have tried the soulful glance, and also the down-drooping lid; I have, with apparent artlessness, led the conversation up to a point where it seemed impossible for you to avoid asking for my hand and heart; but all, all without avail. Harry, I will not answer you at once. I will think the matter over. I will give you time. I feel that to accept you at once were too sudden.

ALLEGATIONS ARE SERIOUS

The Senator Admits That the Indictments Were Returned, but Says He Was Honorably Acquitted.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 4.—
It is said that when Dr. Short's age of consent bill comes up in the Senate, there will be presented to that body and read for the information of the Senate two indictments against Dr. Short. One charges him with performing a criminal operation, and the other with wronging a young woman who made her home with his family. Dr. Short has, while here, been one of the foremost in the championship of female honor, and the announcement that he has ever been charged with such grave derelictions comes in the nature of a big surprise.

nature of a big surprise.

It is said that the information as to the dictments was imparted to Senator Peers. by Judge Bland of the circuit in which Dr. Short resides. Judge Peers has sent to Rolla for indictments, for the purpose of having them read in the Senate.

Dr. Short resides. Judge Peers has sent to Rolla for indictments, for the purpose of having them read in the Senate.

DR. SHORT'S STATEMENT.

Dr. Short this morning prepared the following statement respecting the charges against him:

"In explanation I will briefly state facts which can be verified by not less than four-fifths of the citizens of Phelps County. Soon after I located at Rolla where I now live, I established a small infirmary for the care and treatment of patients afflicted with chronic diseases. I had in my employ a woman, who, I learned was of unchaste character, and as soon as I became apprised of the fact, I quietly discharged her. She was a relative of a man who now stands indicted in the United States Court for embezzlement and forgery, so I am informed. This man came to me and asked me to sign his petition for a government appointment. I refused to sign his petition. He employed several lawyers and they secured the services of a colored woman and a girl I years of age by name Suda Campbell, who they induced to go before the Grand Jury and swear falsely. I must say here that some of the attorneys in the case were to a great extent ignorant of the fact that perjury was committeed by these witnesses. This indictment was not in good faith, but it was gotten up for the purpose of manufacturing public opinion against me so that a verdict against me could be secured in a slander suit which had been instituted against me. Soon after Sudie Campbell, my age is I years, I now live in Springfield, to take her statement which reads as follows:

"My name is Sudie Campbell, my age is I years, I now live in Springfield, to take her statement which reads as follows:

"My name is Sudie Campbell, my age is I years, I now live in Springfield, to take her statement which reads as follows:

"My name is Sudie Campbell, my age is I years, I now live in Springfield, to take her statement from this one when I was before the Grand Jury, because Lawyer Kelly told me to do so, and told me that he was Prosecuting Attorne would that be any reason that a bill presented by me should not pass both Houses, provided it be a good one? The fact is, this whole piece of slander has been introf duced into the Senate in order to defeat all my bills only because Senate has been introf duced into the Senate in order to defeat all my bills only because Senate Harrison on Dr. Woodward, and anti-ghing his an ill Woodward clause is to legislate Prof. W. The to be due to criminal careiessies. The report has been handed into the Court. The many acts of violence which have been bringing the city into disrepute are referred to. There have been numerous cases bringing the city into disrepute are referred to. There have been numerous cases of intimidation on the part of the strikers toward those who took their places, it states. As to the origin of the strike, every effort had been made to get at the bottom, so that some measure might be taken to obviate a repetition of the trouble. There was no doubt the difference between the companies and the men in construing the ten-hour law was the principal cause of the trouble. The District Attorney should press these indictments to a speedy issue. Many people claim the roads were run at a dangerous rate of speed. Evidence was presented showing that the cars were run at from twelve to eighteen miles an hour. The question was not followed up by the jury and it was poweries to act, there being no ordinance to cover the point. The jury recommended that an enactment should be passed regulating the speed. It suggested that eight miles an hour on he outskirts. Bome apparatus should be employed to register and exhibit the rate of speed to passengers. The jury is opposed if the use of fenders as a means of absolving the companies from Hability in case of actidents. The great number of suits should be in incentive to provide themselves with some appliance that would have been avoided if there had been on the cars a chute filled with said and worked with a simple level. The jury thought a proper safeguard inout be guaranteed to the public by the sindoyment of none but competent motorms and recommended that it be made illegally employ other than licensed motormen.

about three yards in length. The gown is lined throughout with heavy ivery slik, tashioned at the bottom with three full ruffies of full lace. These ruffles are trimmed with bows of astin ribbon. Point d'Agleterre forms a drapery over the hodice, beginning a little back of the right shoulder; it then crosses to the left side and passes under a folded empire belt which is made of satin. At the bottom of the belt the drapery begins again, and is extended over the left side like a jabot and is carried around the front of the skirt in van dykes which are looped and fastened by small bunches of real orange blossoms. The sleeves are out in the latest fashion, the top of the sleeves being very full and the under part very tight. They button very closely over the wrist. The collar is Henry IV, rolled over to the top, displaying facing which was of point d'agleterre. The bodice of the gown is fastened at the back under a roll of satin and two bows of the lace. The bridal vell is of rare old lace presented to the bride by the Marquis de Castellane, and fastened at the crown of the head with a bunch of orange blossoms. The vell did not fall over the face, but simply down the back in close folds, and fastened at the train by orange blessoms.

The petticoat worn with this gown is made of heavy ivory motre silk of the same beautiful that as the dress and trimmed with three flounces of real lace, headed with little butterfly bows of narrow spin ribbon about six inches spart. The bride carried a bouquet composed of orange blossoms and illies of the valley, which was unusually large. It was tied with long, wide white satin ribbons.

THE BRIDEMAIDS.

The four bridemaids were gowned alike in cream white broadcloth, trimmed with sable. The wide skirt was lined with cream white slik and bordered at the foot with a two-inch sable band. Under the sable band the skirt was wired with "feather-bone," which insured perfect curves. The bodice had a yoke effect, formed by four clusters of tiny tucks, which spread out, giving a pouch effect below. The waists were encircled with a sash of cream white moire ribbon, tied in loops, the long ends hangsing at the back, The sleeves were very full and drooping and buttoned tightly at the wrist. The collar was of cream white moire, edged in sable. The bridemaids were Gainsborough hats of black mousseline de sole, shirred over a succession of wires with waved lines of cut jets on the outside of the wires. Single ostrich tips stood up at the left side of the crown and a cluster of three tips was arranged underneath, curling over the top of the brim. At the base of these tips was a cluster of pale pink rosebuds with a bunch of violets and some sprays of mignonette, which drooped down on the hair. The bridemaids' bouquets were of pink and white flowers, two of testual roses and illies of the valley securely tied with broad pink ribbons.

Masters Kingdon and Jay Gould, nephews of the bride, who carried her train, were simply and prettily dressed. They wore knee breeches of white corded silk, white silk stockins, white kid slippers, with liberty satin coats, over white shrts, large squarecut, pale silk collars. Each wore a pin of diamonds and amethysts, the gift of the bridegroom.

said: "Only last week a man in New York, who spee by the name of a minister, made the most unius, disgnating, outraseans attack upon a young girl who is about to be wedded to a titled foreigner. Is it a crime to be rich? Is it necessary for a young lady before she marries to get the consent of every blackguard? I am not vanting, but my indignation cannot find language contemptous enough to describe that miserable, cringing, crawing, silmy, cowardly creature in that New York pulpit who would stab at the heart of a defenseless and innocent woman. ### THE CAPITOL SITE.

St. Louis Real Estate Men Looking About the Country.

Saturday to select a favorable location in

Saturday to select a favorable location in or near St. Louis for the State Capitol, held a meeting this morning but did nothing definite and will hold another at 3:30 this afternoon and decide which of the many choice locations at their disposal is best suited for the purpose. The committee is composed of the following well-known gentlemen: Charles K. Ramsey, Leslie Moffitt, J. B. Case, Fred Zeibig and Charles C. Nicholls.

The general sentiment seems to be in favor of a location somewhere west of the Skinker road and east of the Hanley road and between the St. Charles Rock road on the north and the Old Manchester on the south. Inside of these boundaries can be found several large tracts of beautiful rolling property, ranging from thirty-two to 23 acres in extent.

Nature has done a great deal for these properties and this section is very easy of access from the city, and combining the advantages of a beautiful natural country with all the conveniences of the city.

If the Capitol is located anywhere east of the Hanley road the boulevards of St. Louis will be extended and the street railways will run their lines so that between the heart of the city and the Capitol communication will be as easy as between Grand avenue and Broadway.

The business interests of the city will undoubtedly be benefited by the proximity of the Capitol as it will bring home every day to the members of the Legislature the vastness of St. Louis and the necessity of legislation that will advance the interests of our large manufactories and wholesale houses.

TWO YEARS IN POWER.

The Congress which passed out of existence at noon to-day will rank as one of the most remarkable in the history of the country. It has been condemned by the people, and rightly, but whether the right judgment was also a discriminating one is a question which must be left to the more impartial judgment of the future historian.

It is possible to see now what was not clear six months ago. It is now unmistakably apparent that the chief cause of the failure of the Fifty-third Congress to meet public expectation was a powerful attack on the national currency, with which neither Congress nor the people had anything to do.

Mr. Cleveland took office for his second term at a time when the national debt was being rapidly paid off, when there was every prospect that bank note circufation would expire with it, and that the money of the country would be brought to a cash basis instead of a basis of corporation debt circulating in the form of notes indorsed by the Government.

The first act of Mr. Cleveland's second administration was to thrust the tariff issue to the rear, and thrust in front of it this new issue of the control of the currency. It is not likely that he understood the effects of his action or realized the real nurnose of the men who influenced his course. But whether he knew it or not, he took one of the most dangerous steps ever taken by any man in nublic life.

Against the will of his party, without consulting those whom his party trusted, in the face of his understanding with the took the ground that the $500,000,000 in silver in circulation was not cash or money of final account, but was a part of the floating debt, the redemption of which in gold was required by public honor and credit. This sudden transformation of half a billion in cash into a debt, making a virtual difference of a thousand million in the economic status of the currency, was the most radical step ever taken in the history of the finance of any people. The panic follower at once as a matter of course. It was inevitable, and the fact that we have come through it so well is proof of the resources of the greatest country on earth.

This sudden flank movement, made by Mr. Cleveland, no doubt in absolute ignorance of what it really meant, threw the Democratic party into complete confusion. Victory was turned to defeat. The reform of the tariff dwindled into insignificant proportions before a new and vaster issue—the issue between the perpetuation of an interest-bearing national debt in connection with a currency of bank debt on the one hand and on the other the payment of the national debt and popular control of the currency. Who controls the money of the country is king. Mr. Cleveland presented an issue between popular sovereignty and corporation sovereignly, and blindly took sides against the people. Behind him were the powerful capitalists who had become his friends by contributions "to the cause of reform." A man of honest intentions, we may well suppose that he did not understand them or know the effect of hir cord of disaster for which it was not reponsible, and of failure to act due to its cowardice, leaves the Democratic party in sullen disappointment, but de termined to fight along the lines of its principles. Those who think it has no future know little of America and nothing of Americans. If it were necessary to sacrifice another national election to bring management of the party back to a basis of principle, the rank and file of the party would do it cheerfully. What they will do at any rate will be to force issues of principle, regardless of the prospect of seccess or failure. If they can not win on the record of the Cleveland administration, they can at least make a record to win on. That they will do.

The adjournment of Congress does not leave Democracy hopeless, but determined and aggressive. In the great contest that is at hard the party of the people will not be unworthy of the people.

THE SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH.

Yesterday's Sunday Post-Dispatch was the brightest, freshest, most readable and best illustrated newspaper published in St. Louis. No reprint or scissorings filled its columns. It printed more local news and local special articles than any other newspaper, and they were live and up-to-date. Its general feature articles were unequaled. Its colored cover provided the reader with as many cartoons and comic pictures and as much wit and hunor as a weekly issue of Puck or Judge. Its circulation was larger than that of any other St. Louis Sunday newspaper. It was delivered by carrier to as many St. Louis homes as the Globe-Democrat and Republic combined. In proof of this its circulation books are always open. Its advertising showed a healthy growth, corresponding to the increase of its circulation. The total advertising in yesterday's issue was 82 columns, as compared with 66 columns for the corresponding Sunday of last year. Of Want Ads there were 27 columns, with 1,392 separate advertisements, as compared with 26 columns and 1,366 separate advertisements a year ago. In both circulation and advertising the Sunday Post-Dispatch is moving upward and onward. It is at the top and proposes to remain there.

THE LAST WORD.

"The welfare of the city depends on nothng more than on the thorough cleaning of the streets and alleys before the sickly season approaches," said Health Commissloner Homan in an interview in yesterday's Sunday Post-Dispatch.

This is the last word on the subject of cleaning the streets. The sanitary interests of a great city are paramount to all others, and the sanitary interests of St. Louis demand that the streets and alleys be made clean. The mire of the streets and the refuse of the alleys which have been collected through the winter contain disease-breeding matter that must be re- keep their rubbish out of the alleys. moved before warm weather comes.

The officials of the Street Departmen know the condition of the streets. The filthy alleys have been reported to the Health Commissioner by the sanitary inspectors. No excuse can be accepted for failure to make a thorough cleaning of the paved streets and alleys. Further explanations will be taken as confession o ncompetence.

ESTABLISH THE REFORMATORY.

In spite of the sordid objections of the penitentiary contractors, it is to be hoped that the Legislature will pass the bil providing for a State Reformatory. Dr. Pettijohn's bill, as amended by the committee, is a carefully guarded measure and great good to the State would result from the institution for which it provides

It is shocking to think of boys and girls committed for first offenses being thrust into a penitentiary where their associate perforce be largely hardened must criminals. Under such circumstances a penitentiary is simply a school of vice and crime. Experience in other States shows that a large proportion of the young men and women subjected to the discipline of a Reformatory become honest and useful citizens after their release, while nearly all those condemned to the degrading in fluences and associations of the prison become permanent additions to the ranks of "habitual criminals." Society has the right to protect itself against wrong-doers. It has no right to make criminals of these who, often from sheer ignorance and inexperience, take the first false step. It is barbarous to herd together indiscriminately the hardened eterans of crime and vice and the boys and girls whose waywardness has le them but a step from the path of decency and uprightness. The penal system of every civilized State aims at reform rather than at punishment. It is not creditable to Missour that a Reformatory was not long ago made one of her most cherished and use ful institutions.

GEORGE, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. WILD IS ENRAGED.

The Aesthete's Libel Suit Against the Marquis of Queensberry.

LONDON. March '.- The Marquis of Queensberry, who was remanded on bail at the Marlborough Street Police Court, says he is glad to have a chance to air the case charged with libeling Oscar Wilde. It apears that the Marquis left with a porter the Albemarle Club a card upon which was written an offensive remark referring to Os car Wilde.

A lawyer who appeared for Mr. Wilde said that the latter, who was on affectionate terms with his wife and child, had been the object of a system of the most appearance. terms with his wife and child, had been the object of a system of the most cruel persecution at the hands of the Marquis of Queenberry during the last ten months. Owing to the eluation of affairs in the family of the Marquis of Queensberry, Mr. Wilde was most unwilling to take steps toward criminally prosecuting the Marquis. But he had been so fearfully persecuted that matters had now reached a climax and he was obliged in self-protection to take action. Oscar Wilde and his wife are both members of the Albemarle Club, and on Feb. 28 it appears one of the hall porters handed Mr. Wilde a card which the Marquis of Queensberry had lett for him. Written on the card were three most offensive and indecent words, implying that Mr. Wilde was souteneur and addicted to unnatural vices. This card had been lying in the club ten days before Mr. Wilde received it.

The defendant says Wilde has compromised one of the members of his family, and for months he has sought opportunity to insult the aesthete.

It is not only the aristocracy of England that is agog over the insult offered to Oscar Wilde by the Marquis of Queensberry, for the name of the lord is so familiar to every Wilde by the Marquis of Queensberry, for the name of the lord is so familiar to every puglist and sportsman Queensberry has kept in training all his life. He is a familiar sight during the London season tramping through Hyde Park early in the morning in knickerbockers, accompanied always by a favorite fox terrier, on a ten-mile walk before breakfast. In a personal combat with Wilde he might literally go about that fat gentieman like the familiar cooper, in sporting parlance, "round a barrel," and Oscar would be sorry about the circulation as long as he remembered it, which would be a very long time, indeed. Queensberry is a most bumptious little man—one of the kind of little men who bully big fellows into a fight and then thrash them, much to their surprise and mortification. He is always ready for a "go" at flaticuffs, either with a ruffian at the ringside or a gentleman who may have jostied him in

The people of the United States have given too many proofs of their capacity for self-government and of their attachment to our institutions to justify any suspicion that Anarchy, Communism or Socialism will prevail on this continent against the American idea of individual liberty regu-lated by law. The relations between capital and labor, employers and employed, the rich and the poor, are inharmonious, no doubt, and require adjustment. The bur-dens and the blessings of our society are not equitably distributed. The tyranny of labor unions was born of the despotism of labor unions was born of the despotism of corporations. Bddie Foy in "Off the Earth."

If Eddie Foy had any doubt as to the regard in which he is held by St. Louisans, he had only to turn those sleepy eyes of his over the Olympic last night to discover the true state of affairs. Eddie did this and then he blinked and then the corners of his dirty, painted, comical mouth turned up. He was happy, and in return he did his best to make everybody else happy. To tell the truth he succeeded.

"Off the Earth" is an extravaganza and therefore a hodge-podge of everything light, bright and gausy that can be thrown to gether without breaking the copyright laws. Sometimes they come pretty near even doing this. They sing and dance and crack jokes with and without whiskers and do a whole lot of things that you laugh at and then feel sort of ashamed of yourself for doing it, but you laugh.

Eddie himself has a half-dozen different makeups, each so absurd and ludierous as to compel merriment. He does a number of funny songs, but why should he perpetrate the strains of "Sweet Marie?" It was cruel of him to do this after the cordial manner in which he was received.

The stage settings of "Off the Farth" are magnificent, comparing favorably with those in Henderson's big productions. The women with whom Foy has surrounded himself would knock the spots, so to speak, off a Sultan's harem if Eddie would consent to back them in a beauty match. They are well costumed in the sense of looking well in what little they have on.

Among the people who help the star through an amusing evening are Louise Montague, Sadie McDonald, Lillian Hawthorne, Kate Urst, H. W. Fredrick, Joseph Doner and Henry Carter. They all have their parts, but it's Foy's show, and without him would literally not be on the earth.

Lottle Collins brought an aggregation of variety people to the Hagan yesterday whom she romantically ealls her Troubadours. They may not be troubadours, but they are all right in their way. Lottle herself is as vivaclous as ever. She fiashes her skirts and kicks her slender limbs about with an abandon and grace peculiar to herself. She first appears in a skit called "The Fair Equestrienne, in which she does her old "Marquerite" song and dance. Later she is seen in "The Devilbird," an operetta, in which she sings and dances some more.

Fred Solomon's name appears in large type on the programme, and he is the funny man, but Johnny Curran, the St. Louis boy, was the favorite of the day. He sang with his old-time sweetness in both his sketch with Ward and in the operetta. Among the other features of note were the dancing of Marion Hayes, and Marion assisted by the Messrs. Judge Edmunds, who tried the case, and Circuit Attorney Zachritz, who prosecuted, are both convinced, they claim, that Kaiser and Hense were guilty of the murder of E. E. Brown, and both have faily refused to intercede with the Govern or in behalf of the doomed prisoners.

On the other hand numerous petitiens have been signed, and several committees and delegations from exchanges and other organizations visited Jefferson City to argue the innocence of the men and implore executive clemency. During this one of the colored women to-wit, Annie Boghines, spoke to the men and tried to persuade them to desist beating Mr. Brown, where upon one of the men threatened to assault her if she did not go away and leave them alone. The other colored women, Carrie Chapman and Bettle Robinson, were standing near by and heard all that took place. The Bohignes woman finally made such a noise that the men, fearing the approach of the police, ran away just as several citizens, who had heard the noise, came hastening to the scene. One of these citizens, Ben Von Phul, ran to where Brown was and helped him to his feet, with the assistance of another person, and just as Von Phul reached the apot he ran into the arms of a colored woman standing on the sidewalk, who exclaimed: "Hurry up, those men have killed a man."

Several days later in the police station the colored woman identified the prisoners as the ones who committed the assault, and the Boghines woman readily pointed out Mr. Von Phul, who was in the station, dressed entirely different from the garb he wore on the night of the assault, and mentioned to him the very remark she made to him as he ran up to Mr. Brown and into her arms. The testimony of the witness was corroborated in every detail.

The Chapman woman identified all three of the men, but especially Hense and Kaiser, whom she saw kick Mr. Brown in the stomach several times.

The Robinson woman identified Kaiser positively, as he was the last one to run away, and in doing so ran directly toward the spot where the witness stood, with the electric light shining full in his face. This witness also described everything in detail as the Boghines woman had, but as the witness had run across the street when the row began she did not get a good look at any of the men except Kaiser, as he ran toward her, although McDonald and Hense looked like the men she saw there.

TOR THE PROSECUTION.

Reasons Why Mr. Zachritz Thinks Kaises and Hense Are Guilty.

On the night of March 2, 188, Mr. Edwin E. Brown, residing at 1819 Morgan street, this city, a prominent stock commission merchant, was on his way home, between $\text{a}$ and 10 o'clock and when passing in front of the residence of then. F. G. Niedringhaus he was attacked by three young men and robbed of his gold watch and chain and beaten and bruised by the robbers to such Mr. Brown was one of the most prominence of the victim. hesitant and doubtful, even as to the one man whom they were willing to identify, Kaiser. In this connection let it be remembered that Sergt. Woodlock, who reduced their statements to writing, had been some six months previously the subject of a "roast," not only from the bench in court, but from the press of the city, for a persistent persecution of the same young man, Henry Kaiser.

At this stage was introduced the "professional perjurer," Annie Boghines, as she is styled in the affidavits of Thomas Speers, Chief of Police of Kansas City; Hon. Will S. Cowherd, ex-Mayor of Kansas City; Hon. Will S. Cowherd, ex-Mayor of Kansas City; and Hon. Hugh J. McGowan, World's Fair Commissioner for Missouri of Kansas City, who also testified that they believe her to be insane and to have a manis for testifying in criminal cases, always for the State, and that she seemed to gloat in the conviction of men. The Clerk of the Criminal Court of Jackson County wrote, giving a list of ten criminal cases in which she had collected fees as State witness within two or three years, on a cursory examination of a fee book, not indexed. Since coming back to St. Louis she had already testified in three or four State cases, and in one of them, State vs. Coutilin, according to Judge Edin each other's presence and hearing?

Why, bless your innocent soul, Annie Boghines is to be ushered on the scene, and a great day of infamous, disbolical work is to be accomplished.
Right here let me remark that Maj. Harrigan was in Hot Springs, Ark., on account of his health at the time, and William Desmond, Chief of Detectives, was on a sick bed, very low, with chances of his dying. The management of this case, as of the detective bureau, was temporarily in the hands of Dennis C. Viehle, accidentally taken from the ranks. If either Harrigan or Desmond had been around, in my opinion, this story could not be written.

The first play of the Boghines woman was to convince each of the witnesses assembled of her-presence at the scene of the murder, which she did by calling attention to some detail of dress or conduct peculiar to the time and scene of the murder to the witness she addressed. The witness naturally concluded Boghines must have been there when she knew this detail. How did Annie know these details if she was not there? I answer by asking who posted her? But that all this took place there can be no doubt. The testimony of Stark, Chapman, Robinson, Von Fhul, Reedy and Viehle in the State vs. Boghines proves it. Now, after Annie had convinced these witnesses that she, too, was there, the curtain was rung up for the next act. Five mee, including the three accused, were brought in again. Then Annie Boghines went through the drama of graphically describing the part each man took in the tragedy. The other witnesses were looking on and listening. Annie got through, which is the result? Why, everyone there, including the unsuspecting, unsophisticated witnesses, were throughly convinced, were certain, the police had the right men. There could be no doubt about it! And poor, ignorant negress Carrie Chapman is willing to swear positively flow as to the identity of all three accused. The case was now ready for the court. The Coroner's inquest on Brown was reopened March I7, 1858. The three accused were held. What 244,141 00

A rather unique and draing burglar was carried out Sunday nightor early Monday morning at Kessack & Secaman's talloring establishment, 61 Pine street.

The burglars obtained a long piece of strong hempen rope and climbed to the roof of the three-story structure, the first floor of which is occupied by the talloring establishment. They then kicked an opening in the skylight which forms a sort of shaft in the center of the building, arid fastening one end of the rope to a convenient chimney dropped the other through the skylight into the tailor shop and then slipped down. They ransacked the whole place and carried off about 5150 worth of cloth, made up wearing apparel and other articles.

The rope which afforded them such an easy entrance to the place, was stolen from the Globe-Democrat building.

For months they have been reaching out and organising councils in various wards until thousands of workers are now active members. It has not been the intention to run an independent ticket, but to arouse voters to attend the primaries and insist that honest men be nominated. But it reserves the right if neithor party puts up a good man to make a fight of its own, and it is this itely promises to make the coming electry of interest. During the recent prinaries held by both parties the unique spectacle was presented of men and women of prominence jostling elbows with the heelers and voting for men whom the ordinary politician would never think of mentioning. In some wards a personal canvass was made and letters were sent out signed by prominent men urging voters to attend the primaries and cast their votes for honest men. The federation will select the best man chosen in each ward, regardless of party, and give him their support. In some wards it is certain that independent candidates will be put up.

The federation is only about a year and

It was the aim of the organization to use the same methods in conducting a great reform movement that would be used in organizing a vast business enterprise. A business judiciousness was determined on. Only such reforms were to be advocated as would receive the support of the vast majority of the good citizens. There were reformers who urged an immediate attack on the saloon and the social evil, and only the steady hands of the far-sighted leaders prevented a wreck of the federation at its inception.

"We recognize these things as evils," they said. "but can not hope to conquer them until we can march our united forces against them. We will therefore utilize and direct public sentiment, which has been aroused, and proceed against the gambling evil, election frauds and the spolis system in the City Hall, in which we will be backed by the support of all good citizens, and when we have come away triumphant, we hope the discipline and enthusiasm of our forces will be sufficient to enable us to attempt greater things."

It Is Estimated There Are 40,000 Influenza Cases in the City.

Copyright, 1895, by the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 2—Influenza has taken hold of the people of Berlin with a strong grip. The milder weather appears to have favored its spread. In fact, according to the statistics of the local sanitary bureau, three-quarters of all the sickness in the city at present is due to influenza. The epidemic has apparently taken the firmest hold of the well-to-do classes, and few houses in the west, southwest and north-west districts have escaped. It is also noted that the complaint, which was at first of a mild character, has grown much more dangerous, and the number of deaths from influenza and its complications this week has reached several hundred. It is estimated there are 40,000 cases in Berlin.

As foreshadowed some weeks ago, the Emperor has convened the State Council for March 12, the main purpose being to devise means to aid the agriculturists of Prussia, who especially in the eastern provinces, are heavily depressed in financial condition as a result of foreign competition in grain and cattle. The sections of the State Council called to meet are those of husbandry, trades and commerce.

Mr. Hicks challenged Lady Somerset to say publicly before leaving for England whether she believed temperance or landiodism to be the greater curse.

OAKLAND, Cal., March 4.-Where the Sacramento River empties into Suissan Bay there are 362 acres of black sand and clay sediment in which the owner, ex-Mayor M. C. Chapman, believes to be Mayor M. C. Chapman, believes to be hidden colossal wealth. His theory is that the Sacramento has for 'ages been carrying grains of gold in its current and that where the channel broadens as it enters Suissan Bay the force of the current diand the back sand washed from the Sierras minishes, and the pulverized gold quarts has settled, mingled with various sedimentary deposits, until now there are 352 acres having an average depth of deposit land of 25 feet and 2 inches.

An assayer claimed he extracated $10 worth of gold per ton from the sand, but 'the owner thinks he can extract $25 per ton from the sand. Chapman says he now has an electrical process by which he expects to be able to extract the gold without difficulty.

FOR STATEHOOD

The Labor of Forty Years About to Be Crowned With Success.

FRAMING THE CONSTITUTION

For the Seventh Time a Convention Begins This Preparatory Work at Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE, Utah, March 4.—The day for the opening of the Constitutional Convention is halled with delight by the inhabitants of this valley, whose aspirations and constant endeavor for statehood have extended over a period of more than forty years. The six previous conventions which met and did their work, adjourned only to see their hopes shattered and statehood deferred.

This convention, unlike the six which preceded it, enters upon its labors under the inspiring assurances that statehood will speedily follow the completion of its work. The history of Utah's forty years' struggle for statehood is of special interest at this time. The struggle began in less than two years of the settlement of the Mormon ploneers in Salt Lake Valley the first Constitutional Convention being held early in 1849. After the adoption of a Constitution, the election of a provisional Government was held and Brigham Young elected Governor. The Constitution was forwarded to Washington and was rejected by Congress in 1850. Utah was, however, at that time granted a territorial form of government.

After a lapse of seven years the second convention was adopted by it. This petition shared the same fate as the first, and it was not until January, 1862 that the third convention was alled on Jan. 2 of that year the Constitution was adopted and Geo. Q. Cannon and W. H. Hooper chosen as delegates to present the same to Congress, On the 3d of the following March the Constitution was almost unanimously adopted by the people, and Brigham Young was again elected Governor. The people were a third time disappointed, as no action was taken by Congress.

Ten years later, on Feb. 19, 1872, the fourth convention was convended at Salt Lake City

HOT MILITARY TALK.

After concluding the debate on the mayal estimates, resulting in the adoption of the recommendations of the committee in nearly every case, the Reichstag commenced consideration of the military budget. On the vote upon the salary of the Minister of War, Liebnecht, the Socialist leader, moved an amendment proposing to convert the German army into a militia. He advanced the idea that the militia system was a model, and referred to a similar proposition brought forward by the French Socialists.

It Cuts Both Ways.

From the Chicago Evening Post..

"We shipped $18,000,000 worth of cattle and products to France since last year, and this great trade is absolutely descroyed." This is Nelson Morris brief comment on the third chapter of the story of mailonal retaliation. France has followed the lead of Germany and Belgium in excluding American cattle from her ports.

In each of these cases the inhibitory action was taken in direct response to the infamous sugar duties. No other motive than retaliation is pretended, it is a fine lesson for the greedy tools of the trust in Congress. The people are learning that the interdiction of the products of other countries is a game two can play at. It is a double-edged sword, and the trade of this country is now feeling only the first wounds inflicted by bungling hands at the hilt.

From the Kansas City Times.

The people of this State are in favor of economy. They are appowed to profligacy and waste in all forms. But they don't want the greatest source of pride, the school system, to be destroyed either for the purpose of saving a few thousand dollars or hoarding up a lot of party buncomb as political capital. If the Republicans in the Legislature want to test the question let them persevere. The Democratic Senate will protect the cherished institutions of the State, and rely on the good people of Missourt to sustain them.

INSURANCE AGENTS MAKE DENIALS.

Peomise of Trouble in the Western Union Belittled.

BUSIRESS MEN ARE HOPEFUL.

Reasons for the Continuance of the Unions' Trust-Like Rule Given by Those Interested in Its Longer Life.

There is a disposition among board insurance agents to deny the statement that trouble is threatened at the meeting of the Western Union of Fire Underwriters, to be held in this city Wednesday, or that any withdrawals are anticipated.

Notwithstanding these denials, it is believed that there is a probability of trouble at Wednesday's meeting, and business men are strong in their denunciation of the methods of maintaining rates practiced by the union, and any withdrawals from the Union will be rewarded by a heavy and immediate increase of business.

One of the more prominent agents took very strong ground; saying:

"There is absolutely no truth in the rumor that there will be any withdrawals at Wednesday's meeting. The fact is, I know of several companies which will join the Union, one of them beling one of the largest companies. The only foundation for the story now current is that some trouble exists in the Pactic Union, which is controlled from San Francisco."

Mr. Nicholas R. Wall of Wall & Whittemore, said: "There is nothing in the rumored trouble in the Western Union, as far as St. Louis is concerned. The Western Union simply holds its semi-annually meeting here Wednesday, and there is no significance in its being held in St. Louis. The Western Union is composed of the managers in the Middle and Western Department.

"The insurance companies have lost money for the past twenty years, to prove which I will refer you to Whipple's Fire Reporter of March 24, 1894, in substantion of this statement. It is purely local in character and its figures apply solely to St. Louis. It gives a reviey for the past twenty-five years, and the average of losses as against premiums was 35 per cent for the whole period.

"The average yearly premiums in St. Louis are about $2,200,000, and in 1894 the losses were $1,100,000, to which must be added 33 to 35 per cent or their premiums regardless of any loss they may incur.

"One of the principal sources of trouble is the laxity of fire laws. We have no fire marshals to investigate f block is the resuit of the scientific study of underwriting building of fire-proof structures."

Mr. George Markham of W. H. Markham & Son said: "I think it a misfortune for any impression to be sent abroad that a disruption of the Western Union is probable, as the insurance line is a great business, affecting an important percentage of the armings of the community, and turmoil simply delays the outworking of the permanent laws under which the business must be conducted.

"Insurance is not a commodity the cost of which is known to the salesman. The insurance price is a question of broad experience and far-reaching ratios, and the quicker, more smoothly, more publicly and more locally the ideal rating can be accomplished the better for all concerned.

"Insurance is only a tax and the equities of its distribution can only be ascertained by combined experience. The board work in St. Louis has demonstrated its value in the inspection of stores, factories, etc., and the question of a trust is a wrong impression, as there is no pooling of premiums and all companies work independently of each other as competitors for the business.

A Weird Gift Offered the Paris Faculty of Medicine.

Paris Correspondence London Times.

Dr. Luys has offered to the Paris Faculty of Medicine, for the Dupuytren Museum, a collection of 220 brains, carefully prepared and catalogued by him during his long service at the Salpetriere and Charite Hospitals. In a letter to M. Brouardel, in which he calls his collection unparalleled in Europe, he describes in detail its scientific interest. "It presents," he says, "manifold samples of lesions of human brains, from the commonest ordinary hemiplegy, the aphasis, up to the most characteristic lesions of madness, and, as a foundation for the studies, hitherto so ill based, of mental pathology, a series of types of persons suffering from hallucination or monomanis, and of those who are chronically delirious with or without consciousness, and it presents, also, anatomical axpressions in harmony with the symptoms observed. Types, of which there are four examples, relate to periodic madness. These are the first examples of the sort ever collected and offered to the examination of the medical public, and to show similar lesions, which justly place them in a special nosologic category. Next come brains of general paralytics, with granulated lesions in certain regions and characteristic concomitant atrophy. I have collected also a number of brains relating to idiocy, some relating also to desiness and to deaf-mutes. Others have been taken from persons blind of one eye, from the wholly blind and from the amputated, and they allow us, from the point of alyportised subject, the only one at present in existence), and they allow us, from the point of view of the morphology of human brains, to gain a rapid and accurate idea of the rarity or the frequency of such anatomic dispositions, since it is thus possible to consult immediately from the point of view of verification the cerebral lobes which are present under the eyes." The collection is the result of twenty years investigation, and Dr. Luys looks upon it as his scientific herita

DR. DOYLE'S QUEER VISIT.

How the "Inventor" of Sherlock Holme Treated the Stockton Family.

Treated the Stockton Family.

From the Boston Beacon.

Dr. Doyle, the story runs, was engaged to lecture in Morristown under the auspices of St. Bartholomew's School, and the twenty-five boys of the school were in a quiver of excitement at the prospect of seing and meeting the creator of Sherlock Holmes. The head master, Rev. F. E. Edwards, with the most hospitable intentions, invited Dr. Doyle to dinner before the lecture, inviting also at the same time Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stockton, great friends of the clergyman. Dr. Doyle declined the invitation, to the great regret, indeed, of the host, the two guests and four or five boys that had been specially favored by being asked to meet the big author.

At the dinner, however, to the surprise of Mr. Edwards, he received a telephone message from Dr. Doyle, at the station, announcing, "I'm here. What shall I do?"

"Why, we didn't expect you! But do come right over; we just sat down to dinner."

Swinging along, the Englishman soon appeared but despite diplomatic casaying dinner."

Swinging along, the Englishman soon appeared, but despite diplomatic coaxing could not be prevailed upon to enter the dining-room. He wouldn't, he said, meet any one. No!
Afthough assured that only Mr. and Mrs. Stockton and four boys were present; that the dinner was very informal, he still remained obdurate.
"Can't I eat my dinner alone?" he asked bluntly. bluntly.
So he ate his dinner alone, devouring relays of vegetables with lightning rapidity.

Unknown to any one in the house, the brawny Englishman soon fled, and was next seen in the lecture-hall of the school.

A large audience was present, and every courtesy was extended to him.

After the lecture, with insulting haste, Dr. Doyle pocketed the $300 fee and hastened to the train. The only person, in fact, that met the distinguished British author was Mr_Stockton, and as the fact, that met the distinguished British author was Mr_Stockton, and as the author of "Rudder Grange" introduced the lecturer the latter couldn't very well avoid meeting him. But the twenty-five boys were sadly disappointed at not shaking hands with the hero of their finaginings. The whole proceeding of the talented author was, in fact, so foreign to what has been reported of him by men and papers that Morristown's "four hundred" are wondering whether Dr. Doyle could possibly have thought the town was a jay place, and that he therefore dreaded meeting bucolic enthusiasis.

A READABLE LIE.

Story on Rando ph Churchill Good Enough to Be True.

Enough to Be True.

From the New York Times.

Henry Irving tells a story about Lord Randolph which probably has never before appeared in print. Irying was playing "Hamlet" in Edinburgh. He was just coming into fame then, and everybody in town who could find room in the house went to see him. There was one notable exception that nearly drove the local manager of the theater crazy. Lord Beauclere's box was empty. Such a thing had not happened before for years on somomentous an occasion. No matter how brilliant the rest of the audience, so long as his lordship's box was empty. Irving suggested to the manager that perhaps he attached too much importance to the matter, but he was not to be consoled. The next night there was a young man in the "royal" box, as it was called, sitting in solitary grandeur, and paying the strictest attention to the play. After the second act Mr. Irving received a message that Lord Randolph Churchill wished to come behind the scenes to speak with him. In those days Lord Randolph was a good deal of a "masher," and Irving thought it was merely a pretense to come behind and have a chat with the ladies of the company. But Lord Randolph walked right into Irving's dressing-room and made himself thoroughly at home.

"This is one of Shakspeare's plays, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Irving, looking at his visitor in astonishment. Lord Randolph was fresh from college, and at that time the curriculum was closely confined to the classics and mathematics. No attention at all was paid to literature.

"What becomes of Hamlet?" was Lord Randolph's next question. "I can't stop, y'know; got an engagement."

Mr. Irving told him, and then he inquired: "What becomes of Ophelia?" This question was also answered. Then Lord Randolph were both present, Lord Randolph that suggestions that have occurred to me during this play to-night have laid the foundation for my whole future career." At a dinner in London a few years ago, where Mr. Irving and Lord Randolph were both present, Lord Randolph told this story From the New York Times.

Long Pastorate in Chicago Ended.

From the Chicago Herald.

Universal regret is expressed that the Rev. Dr. Clinton Locke is compelled by the loss of his vocal powers to retire from the rectorship of Grace Episcopal Church, which he has held for the last thirty-six years. This is a longer period than any other Protestant clergyman in Chicago has been the pastor of the same congregation. Dr. Locke's ministry has been distinguished by great ability in the pulpit and in the discharge of church duty, by dignity and elevation of conduct, by Christian purity and simplicity of character, and by many graces of life. He is held in affectionate regard by the members of his late flock, and it is understood that they will make liberal provision for his support and maintenance during the remainder of his life.

Detailed Statement of Its Application and of the Methods of Preparing It for Practitioners.

Dr. Otto E. Forster of the Board of Health was asked to-day whether he thought sufficient time had elapsed since Behring's diptheria anti-toxine had been brought into use to enable a physician to form a definite opinion of its merits. Dr. Forster is a cousin of Dr. Pauli, director of the firm at Hocchst-on-the-Main, near Frankfort, which produced the first anti-toxine for general distribution, and was one of the first physicians in the United States to obtain a sample of the immunized serum. His opportunities for forming a correct judgment have thus been exceptionally good.

judgment have thus been exceptionally good.

"My opinion, based on careful inquiries among the physicians who have used the diphtheria anti-toxine—and particularly upon my own practice—is that physicians who can get the anti-toxine and can have the proper appliances for using it, yet fail to do so, are guilty of criminal malpractice. "Of fifteen cases in which I used the anti-toxine there were three deaths. All three cases were hopeless when I made the first injection. The anti-toxine was used simply because it was considered possible that it might accomplish even more than its own advocates ever claimed. In one case the pulse was barely perceptible. In the others death was imminent.

because it was considered possible that it might accomplish even more than its own advocates ever claimed. In one case the pulse was barely perceptible. In the others death was imminent.

"In every case in which the remedy was applied in time the improvement in the condition of the patient was marked and almost immediate.

"The injection can be made in any soft part where the patient does not lie. The anti-toxine comes in three strengths, 600, 1,000 and 1,500 anti-toxine units. The second and third are the proper remedies, the first being used only as a prophylactic. Ten c. c. or two and one-half teaspoonfuls are an injection. Sometimes as many as 40 c. c. are used at intervals of from twelve to twenty-four hours. The practice is to keep up the treatment until the toxic symptoms disappear. The first injection is made as soon as the disease is known to be diphtheria, of which the best test is the Health Department culture tube.

"The result of the anti-toxine treatment is to loosen the diphtheria membrane and it is discharged. The membrane yields to coughing by an adult when the cause, the toxic poison, is neutralized."

Dr. Forster, who took his own medicine with wholly happy results, was asked to explain the method of obtaining anti-toxine, which the Beard of Health has adopted. The anti-toxine farm is at Quarantine Station, and is under the direction of Dr. Joseph Hardy. Three horses are being used, one to experiment upon and two exceptionally sound young animals to produce the serum. It will require several months to complete the process which was begun about the middle of December.

Diphtheria toxines from a violent case are planted and cultivated in gelatine. They multiply rapidly, the gelatine undergoing chemical changes on account of the growth and amimal functions of the germs. The Germans add a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid to kill the bacilli The French filter them out. In either case the baccilli are taken from the solution which is then to be immunized. Any quantity of the surfer four to the weight.

The theory underlying the diphtheria anti-toxine treatment that a specific poison requires a specific antidote, is inding application, as is well known, in Dr. Paquin's tubercular anti-toxine method. Another experiment not so well known here is that variola anti-toxine experiments are under way at the United States Marine Hospital at Washington, D. C.

Handsome Greek Types Prevail in the South of France,

From the Century.

But there is one thing in Arles that you will need no guides of any kind to show you I mean the beauty of its women, who are still naive or wise enough to wear the little Arlesian cap and voluminous fichu. Ol course they have always been famous fol loveliness all over the world, yet nothing in other parts of the world will have helped you to imagine them.

loveliness all over the world, yet nothing in other parts of the world will have helped you to imagine them.

The type is peculiar to Provence—much more delicate than Italian types, the very dark eyes and hair contrasting with the whitest of skine; a spirited and yet an extremely poetic type, and so refined, so aristocratic, that its charm is not lost in old age. Nevertheless, not the type itself, but the frequency of its perfect presentation is the most aurprising, the most delightful fact.

Here af ugly woman, a commonplace-looking girl, is the exception; where five or six are gathered together, three at least will be beauties and the others will be comely. Surely, if these people are as Greek as they like to think, the sculptors of ancient Greece needed their imagination less than we are accustomed to think. Scores of times I cried to myself, "This one is the most beautiful of all." But best of all I now remember a girl who, with the true Arlesian face, had unbellevable riches of red hair.

She was more beautiful than, in our uncqual world, any woman has any right to be. It was bearable to look at her only because one felt that, very likely, every man and woman in Aries, including her spiendid self, thought the redness of her hair distressingly unfortunate.

SOME READABLE STORIES.

Little Incidents in the Lives of

In the Pebruary Century Mrs. James F. Fields tells the following incident which Dr. Oliver Wandell Holmes once related to her. "Just forry years ago," he said, "I was whipped at school for a slight offense-whipped with a ferule right across my hands so that I went home with a blue mark where the blood had settled, and for a fortnight my hands were stiff and swollen from the blows. The other day an old man called at my house and inquired for me. He was bent and could inst creep along. When he came in he said; "How do you do fir," do you recollect your old teacher, Mr. —"I did perfectly! He sat and talked awhile about indifferent subjects, but I saw something rising in his throat, and I knew if was that whipping. After a while is said. "I came to ask your forgiveness for whipping you once when I was in anger; perhaps you have forgoaten it, but I have not." It had weighed upon his mind all these years! He must be rid of it before lying down to sleep peacefully."

JEFFERSON'S "BOB ACRES."

Joseph Louerson was playing Sheridan's comedy of "The Rivals" in Boston some time ago. His version of the play has been arranged in such a way as to give Bob Acres considerable more prominence, per-haps, than the author originally intended, occasionally at the expense of the other edian, sat the play out, and at its cenclusion was asked: "How do you like Jefferson's Bob Acres?" "Capital, capital," replied

DEPUTIES DUPIN AND DUBOIS.

Dupin the elder, who presided over the Chamber of Deputies up to the coup d' etat, disliked a prosy, long-winded speaker. One of his bugbears was a Deputy of the center, with the name of Abraham Dubois. One day Dubois had occupied the rostrum for more than an hour, and his speech was not half finished. Suddenly Dupin rang his bell and got up. "Abraham, Abraham," he exclaimed in a sepulchral tone, "Abraham, Abraham, the hour for the sacrifice has struck!" The poor speaker did not protest, but immediately yacated the rostrum.

men may find a positive cure for Consumption, but it is a great Consumption, but it is a great thing to be able to prevent it, and in its early stages even to cure it. The only remedy yet known to prevent, as well as to cure in the early stages of the disease, is Scott's Emulsion of Caddiver Oil with the Hypoliver Oil with the Hypo-hites of Lime and Soda. It acts in two ways—as a medi-ine destroying the germs which suse the disease, and as a food topping the wasting (the con-uming), and replacing the lost

LOVE AND HATE STRUGGLE FOR THE MASTERY.

A Vivid Portrayal of Passionate Love, Jealousy and Woman's Heartlessness.

GARRET, and on the table a loaf of bread, and beside it a big knife and an empty bottle. In one corner an old chest and and above it a picture of Columbine. In a little alcove in the background a bed without sheets or blankets and standing behind a half drawn curtain. Coarse horsehair sticks out of the trees. A little cuckoo clock on the wall, torn materess. A little cuckoo clock on the wall, torn materess. A little cuckoo clock on the wall, torn materess. A little cuckoo clock on the wall, and through the little window the snow falling silently.

Pierrot sits dejected on a chair. His elbows rest on the table and his face is hidden in his hands. In front of him the empty bottle and the big knife. The tailow drips from the flickering candle.

Pierrot raises his half frozen head and trembling warms his stiffening fingers at the flickering candle.

Pierrot raises his his frozen head and trembling warms his stiffening fingers at the flickering candle.

Pierrot raises his half frozen head and trembling warms his stiffening fingers at the flickering candle.

Pierrot raises his half frozen head and stretches his arms out in his loneliness. He glances up at the pictures of Columbine, who is far away, whom he had turned out, and he curses her. She had ducelved him and he had found her in the arms of a stranger. He had flum her out into the street. Ever since he had been longing after her. If only she would come again how freely he would forgive her!

A deep sadness comes over him and he found. Bread! pfull It is old and moldy. The bottle, it is empty! Pierrot drinks then!

Ah! his dreams are chinging. They are inhappy; his face is stern. "Supposing he were to strike me again and throw me out into the atreet!"

"Say what you want?" he says. She ets fall her cloak from her shoulders. Tableau and deep silence.
"Leave," and he opens the door wide.

"Leave," and he opens the door wide.
"Leave," and he opens the door wide.
"Leave," and he opens the door wide.
"It is so cold, it is snowing. Have pity."
"You are right; stay here."
"Thank you," she says in a low voice.
She tries to kiss his hand, but he pushes her away with secorn and disgust.
"Do not touch me!" he cries.
She shrinks back, keeping her eye fixed upon his face and thinking how she can touch him and get him in her power.
Step by step she glides toward Pierrot; her hands, her eyes, her lips, all beseeching him for forgiveness; but when he feels her warm body against his own, he repels her and thrusts her back roughly.
But again and again she moves up to him, and by degrees his hatred begins to lessen and passion rise in his throat. His hands tremble, his face grows white as chalk; and the anguish of passionate love shows itself in his features. Columbine puts her arms around him and presses him to her breast,

"The Sedgwick building was represented to me by Rouse and Blackwelder to have cost $25,000," said Mr. McCasiand. "I was told its rental income was $13,000 per year, but have since learned that the amount is about $5,000 less. The building was sold to me at a valuation of $155,000, subject to a mortgage of $30,000, of which the company agreed to pay $5,000, leaving a net consideration of $150,000. The latter amount was what I valued my property at, but I consented to pay abonus of $8,000 to close the deal. I gave the deeds and paid $2,900 of the $8,000, but was unable to obtain the balance on account of the stringency in the money market at that time. I am still willing to make the trade, but I do not propose to lose my property and get nothing in return. I want a deed to the Sedgwick building or else a return of my own property."

William M. Thompson Killed by a Freight Train.

The mangled remains of an unknown ma who had evidently been killed by a train, were found by a switching crew in the were found by a switching crew in the B. & O. yards. They were removed to Kurrus' morgue, where they remain. A letter was found on the body bearing the address of William M. Thompson, 523 Walnut street, St. Louis. The contents indicated that Thompson was a performer who had secured an engagement with Gollmar Bros. circus and had instructions to report at Bridgeport, Conn., this month. Inquiry at 523 Walnut confirmed the supposition that the mangled body was that of Thompson. He had boarded at that number a short time, and left last Saturday, stating that he had been called to Bridgeport to join the circus. Nothing was known at the boarding house about the man's relatives or family. If he had any. It is supposed that he was short of tunds and was trying to board an outgoing freight train with the intention of stealing a ride, when he was killed. The body was found late in the night, though it is supposed the man was killed by a train that left the yards about 8 p. m.

OSCAR WILD TO THE SPHINX.

The Aesthetic Poet's Mystical Ad-

Critic Mr. Waugh speaks of Oscar Wilde's complaint of the impossibility of getting expensive books. To do his share in obcomplaint of the impossibility of getting expensive books. To do his share in obviating this unpleasant condition of things har. whice has published a poem called "The Sphinx," of which only twenty-five copies are for this country, the price being 30 each. Here is a practical solution of the problem, so far as Mr. Wilde's own work is concerned. If any one should think 30 too much to give for a poem by Mr. Wilde, he may think it not more than a fair price to pay for a book so beautifully printed and bound, and liustrated by so clever a draughtsman as Charies Ricketts, an illustrator who has certain of Aubrey heardsley's tricks in the use of the line, but is more of an illustrator and less of an eccentric. Here is Mr. Wilde's invocation to the Sphinx:
In a dim corner of my room, for longer than my fancy thinks,
A beautiful and silent sphinx has watched me through the shifting gloom.
Inviolate and immobile she does not rise, she does not sir,
For silver moons are naught to her and naught to her the suns that reel.
Red follows gray across the air, the waves of moonlight ebb and flow,
But with the dawn she does not go and in the night time she is there.
Dawn follows dawn and nights grow old, and all the while this curious cat
Lies crouching on the Chinese mat with eyes of satin rimmed with gold.
Upon the mat she lies and leers and on the tawny throat of her Flutters the soft and silky fur or ripples to her pointed ears.
Come forth, my lovely seneschal! so somnolent, so statuesque!
Come forth, my lovely seneschal! so somnolent, so statuesque!
Come forth, my lovely seneschal! so somnolent, so statuesque!
Come forth, my lovely languorous sphinx!
And let me stroke your head and see your body spotted like the lynx!

And let me stroke your head and see your body spotted like the lynx!

And let me touch those curving claws of yellow lyory and grasp
The tail that, like a monstrous asp, coils round your heavy velvet paws.

Li Hung Chang Asked Some Queer Quee-

When Mr. Allen and Mr. Sachtleber reached Tientsin, after their long bicycle ride from Constantinople across Asia, they had a protracted interview with the Vice nad a protracted interview with the Vice-roy—Li Hung Chang—the man whom Gen. Grant included among three greatest states-men of his day. He asked the young Amer-ican travelers a number of questions about the countries they had ridden through, and at last came down to personalities. The fol-lowing were a few of his inquiries:

at last came down to personalities. The following were a few of his inquiries:
"About how much did the trip cost you?"
"Do you expect to get back all or more than you spent?"
"Will you write a book?"
"Did you like the Chinese diet?"
"How much did one meal cost you?"
"How old are you?"
"Are you married?"
"What is the trade or profession of your parents?"
"Do they own much land?"
"Are you Democrats or Republicans?"
"Will you run for any political office in America?"
"Do you expect ever to get into Congress?"

"Do you expect ever to get into Congress?"
"Do you have to buy offices in America?"
The young men hesitated a little over this last question, and the Viceroy was good enough to say that they would become so well known as the result of their long journey that they might get into office without paying for it. "You are both young," he added, "and may hope for anything."

GEORGE IS NO GENTLEMAN.

Wellington Told Him He Was Not and He Had Previously Proved It.

Wellington Told Him He Was Not and He Had Previously Proved It.

When Lord Liverpool was forming his ministry in 1882 he thought it absolutely necessary to have Canning at the foreign office, although aware that the appointment would be obnoxious to George IV. The Duke of Wellington undertook the unpleasant task of communicating Lord Liverpool's determination.

As soon as the king knew what was wanted of him he broke out: "Arthur, it'is impossible. I said on my honor as a gentleman, he should never be one of my ministers again. I am sure you will agree with me that I cannot do what I said on my honor as a gentleman, he should never be one of my ministers again. I am sure you will agree with me that I cannot do what I said on my honor as a gentleman would have been slienced, but the great soldier, always equal to an senergency, raplied:

"Pardon me, sir, but I don't agree with you at all. Your majesty is not a gentleman, but the sovereign of England, with duties to your people far above any to yourself, and these duties render it imperative that you should employ the abilities of Mr. Canning."

"Well, Arthur," said the king, drawing a long breath, "If I must, I must."

Although he did not like being told he was not a gentleman, George IV, had once, at least, while regent, forgotten he was one This was when he flung a glass of wine in Col. Hamlyn's face, with "Hamlyn, you are a blackyuard!"

The insulted officer could not return the contents in the face of his neighbor, saying: "His majesty's toasti pass it on."

"Hamlyn," cried the regent, "you're a capital fellow! Here's your health."

And they were fast friends from that evening.

SEARCH FOR HIDDEN TREASURE.

Clever Guess.

The Philadelphis Press reports some interesting talk of an old dectective concerning the queer places in which suspicious people hide their money. Such persons are not of necessity misers. They may simply have become distrustful of banks and safety vaults and so have fallen into the practice of keeping their treasure in some secret place where they can see it as often as they wish. One of the detective's stories had to do with the case of a New Jersey man, known to be wealthy, who died and left his family altogether in the dark as to the whereabouts of his property. They searched high and low and as a last resort called in professional assistance.

probably a simple one. He had passed much of his life at sea, and was known to be accustomed to the use of a needle and thread. "Let me see his clothing," said the detective.

The family smiled. They had been through it with knitting needles and had torn out the linings. It was old and badly wornthey could never induce him to dress respectably—and they had given it away. "Send for it, said the detective. "I must see it for myself."

The clothing was recovered, and, to the astonishment of the family, the detective ripped off the wide bindings of the coat and vest and took out four $10,000 bonds, tightly creased and wrapped about with olled slik. "I would give more for a good guess," says the detective, "than for any aystematic method." Such a guess helped him to a comfortable fee from the estate of another man whose heirs believed him to have left a fortune, although they could not find it. He was an elderly man, and, therefors, so the detective reasoned, not likely to have hidden his treasure far from home.

A week's work resulted in nothing. The dead man's saddle, the heels of his boots and his furniture, everything, was pulled to pleces, but no money was found. The ground was dug up under all the trees. Still no sign of the missing property. Then, one day, as the detective was setting out for a drive, a brother of the deceased said to him:

"You will find the place well laid out. My brother surveyed it himself."

"Ah, thought the detective, "then he probably did not hide his money in the house nor in the barn; neither would a surveyor be likely to resort to the root of a tree-or to a stone."

The detective gave up his drive, went back to the house and asked where the man had been in the habit of sittings. At this window," the brother answered. Every old gentleman has his favorite chair.

"Sit down there," said the detective, "and show me what position your brother generally took." It was clear at once that he looked straight toward an old, disused pump. The detective of ollowed the line to the pump massured i raint, our peculiar mars. It was a survivor's point.

The detective followed the line to the pump, measured it and found its exact half way point. There, at a depth of four feet, he found a two-inch steam pipe. Both ends of it were plugged and inside were the bonds and certificates of stock for which the heirs had been searching.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SEA. Queer Trip of a Bottle in the Atlantic

Ocean. From the San Francisco Call.

Capt. Sinclair of the British ship Spring-burn, which arrived from Liverpool a few days ago, received a letter from his owners yesterday which was fraught with consid-gasterday which was fraught with considerable interest to him.

When bound home on his last trip Sinclair threw a bottle containing a memorandum overboard. He reckoned that the bottle would be set inshore by the current at the rate of half a knot an hour, but the bottle made only one-fifth of a knot.

The message was picked up by a fisherman at Barbadoes in the West Indies, and forwarded as requested, to the Springburn's owners, who sent it to Capt. Sinclair. The paper on which the message was written was almost intact, except where it was creased in the middle. The writing in this portion of the letter was almost obliterated by the water, which had soaked in through the cork. The message reads as follows:

THE SPRINGBURN, May II, 1894.

Latitude 6 deg. 30 min. south, longitude 20 deg. 45 min. west.

All well.

Please forward to Robert Shortland & Co., 21 Cathcart street, Greenock, N. B.

"I have thrown over hundreds of such messages," said Capt. Sinclair yesterday,"but this is the first which has ever come back to me."

Senator Mills' Chocolate Drops.

Senator Mills' Chocolate Drops.

From the Washington Post.

Senator Mills had a large paper of chocolate drops at the Senate session Tuesday night. One of the Republican Senators saw it and beckened to the Texan, who crossed the floor and held the package out to him. Immediately the entire front row on the Republican side rose like a huge wave, and six pair of hands were extended in a line to plunge into the depths of that tempting paper bag. Senator Mills shock some of the toothsome contents into each hand, but had hardly finished when another line of eager hands was extended toward him. The Texas Senator saw that his bag of candy would last about as long as a snow-flake in a frying pan, and made an unconditional surrender of his treasure, going back to his seat empty-handed but a wiser man.

Va rious Fossessions of a Waylarer. From the Lawiston Evening Journal. Probably there wasn't another person in the State so well prepared for emergencies as a tramp who has just visited Saco and Biddeford. He had no evercoat, but, as he wore two coats, two thick vests, two pairs of trousers and plenty of underclothing, he didn't miss one much.

When he wandered into the police station he bore a big bundle, consisting of a heavy comforter rolled in a piece of cicloth. In his pockets were found several dozens of loose maches and e box of parior matches, a big roll of newspapers, two dozen railmad time

Annie is is, and has been in an insane asylum twice. She and her mother came to St. Louis from Jefferson City four days ago, and lodged with Mrs. Goddard. The girl was in a delicate condition and she asked Mrs. Goddard to call a physician. He came and at 2 s. m. Sunday Annie's babe entered the world before its time and still in death. The mother's filness took such a serious turn that she was removed to the City Hospital.

Annie was a domestic in Jefferson City and prior to that employment she lived with her mother on their farm near Bloomfield, Mo, Annie said that last summer she went to a picnic with Bish Greenway of Bloomfield.

PARKER-RUSSELL PLANT.

The Fire Clay Buildings at Cheltenh Damaged $40,000 by Fire. At 5 o'clock Sunday morning fire was discovered in the works of the Parker-Russell Fire Clay Mining and Manufacturing Co. Owing to the long distance the engines had to come and the fact that the buildings were chiefly of wood, the plant was almost entirely destroyed. The loss is about $40,000, fully insured. One entire factory, complete in all parts, was uninjured, and the firm will continue business unintegrupted.

IN UNITY THERE WILL BE STRENGTH

Meaning of the Walbridge-Filley Dreibund Combination.

PREPARING FOR GOOD THINGS

The Machine to Be Well Greased and Put in Good Running Order Before the Next State Fight.

sive announcement in the Post-Dispat that Mayor Walbridge had decided to s standpoint the workers admit that "de Old Man's" selection would be an ideal one, as it is conceded that such an act would solidify the two factions in the Republican machine, and result in a harmonious hustle for the success of the spring Council ticket. With Filley and the Mayor working to gether, a Council slate could easily be railroaded through the Republican convention. It has been universally accepted, since the Post-Dispatch's announcement that Filley would get Murphy's job, that such a plan was father of the idea. Der Dreibund may object to Filley's bossism, but that amounts to nothing when the Mayor recognizes it, for the simple reason that Der Dreibund would soon lose its influence, without a City Hall connection. would soon lose its influence, without a City Hall connection.

The senior Dr. Starkloff's nomination for Health Commissioner will be credited to the influence of Der Dreibund. Dr. Starkloff, is the father of the younger Dr. Starkloff, who is one of the strongest Republican politicians in South St. Louis. With his father's name on the slate, the South St. Louis support is assured. Filley can handle the rest of the city easily, with the aid of the Administration.

In the expectation of a battle between Filley and his Honor's friends, the Republican ward leaders were getting ready, for fat pickings. With the sage of Beaumont flican ward leaders were getting ready for fat pickings. With the sage of Beaumont street in line, however, it is conceded that there will be nothing but ward fights of minor importance to disturb the party this spring. there will be nothing but ward fights of minor importance to disturb the party this spring.

As far as the council ticket is concerned everything will be cut and dried before the city convention meets. For a man who aspires to succeed United States Sehator-Vest, and who has a great chance of doing so, provided the State goes Republican, some seem to think the street commissionership is too small. Filley is a smooth one, however, and the chances are he prefers one bird in hand to two in the bush.

Recorder of Voters, Charles P. Higgins, thinks Filley will make a good street commissioner. "They don't do anything in that department, anyway," says Mr. Higgins, "but clean the city Treasury, and I believe Filley can oversee a gang of salary grabbers better than any man in St. Louis. He has been in politics long enough to know how to handle them, and accordingly, should be able to get better results out of them than some civil engineer who has no political training."

NAIVELY ADMITTED PERJURY.

How Joe Meyers Built Up for Himself

Long Perjury Sentence. Sheriff James R. Hogg and Deputy She iffs Charles Flannagan and John Geisler of Poplar Bluff, Butler Co., passed through the Union Station Monday on their way to Jefferson City with six prisoners. Five are sentenced to the penitentiary for two years sentenced to the penitentiary for two years and one for seven.

Joe Myers got the seven-year term for perjury. Joe and Lum and Henry Wright were charged with stealing $40 worth of hogs. Upon their examination before a Justice of the Peace Joe pleaded not gullty and swore the others were also innocent of the charge. When the case came to trial in the Circuit Court Joe naively admitted that he had previously sworn to a lie and testified against his companions. The larceny charge against him was dropped and he was tried and convicted of perjury.

Joe explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did. not know he was under oath when the preliminary hearing was had. He said he believed he was simply waiving examination for himself and his companions. Joe is known in Butler County as a bushwhacker. It is said that he made his living by hunting hogs and disposing of his captures as dressed meat. He lost a leg while on one of his expeditions about a year ago.

Religious Notes.

At the Second Baptist Church Sunday night Rev. Dr. W. W. Boyd delivered the thirteenth of his series of lectures on "So-cialism."

night Rew. Dr. W. W. Boyd delivered the thirteenth of his series of lectures on "Socialism."

Joe, the Turk, led a meeting of over 200 people Sunday night at Salvation Army Hall, 417 Franklin avenue.

Memorial services for the late Frederick Douglass were held Sunday by the Forum Club at 2 o'clock in Wheeler's Hall, Twelfth and Pine. There was a large audience of his colored admirers.

Rev. F. Ohlinger, for twenty-five years a resident missionary of Corea, preached at the Memorial M. E. Church on Jefferson avenue Sunday morning, and at the Taylor Avenue M. E. Church in the evening. Rev. Mr. Ohlinger is accompanied by his wife and will remain in the city some time, during which he will deliver lectures on Corea. They will lecture at the Memorial Church on Jefferson avenue Tuesday evening.

While Eugene Hausman and other workers of the Spruce Street Mission and Home of Rest were holding a meeting Sunday night at Sixth and Clark avenue, they claim they were interrupted by an officious policeman, who with much profanity ordered them to show their permit. This they did, when he walked away still swearing. The leaders are very indignant and will complain to Chief Harrigan.

The forty hours devotion closed in the Cathedral Sunday with solemn exercises. Archbishop Kain preached on the "Blessed Eucharist," after which a procession of the Blessed Bacrament took place.

Fred A. Wiggins of Boston addressed the St. Louis Spiritual Association Sunday night. He explained spiritualism and said when it had lived as long as Christianity has, spiritualism will be the prevailing religion.

GEN. M'CLERMAND'S CONDITION.

He is Very Feeble and Aged and Will Probably Die.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 4.—Gen. M SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 4.—Gen. Mc-Clernand's condition this morning is prac-tically unchanged. He slept at intervals during the night, but continues very weak. Owing to his advanced age and the fact that he has given up all hope of getting well, his recovery is a matter of grave doubt. He is now 83 years of age, and up to within two or three months ago has always been in robust health. He is now very feeble, both physically and mentally.

Small-Pox Reports.

Four new cases of smallopx were reported Sunday. Hattle Wells was removed from 1311 Wash street, Amella Johnson, a school girl, and Mary E. Emory from 912 North Eleventh street, and Carnelius Harrington from 124 Gay street. All colored.

The Quarantine Station bulletin reports the death of "Major" Brown, Burton Knox and Abe Ketchum. Five patients were discharged.

Out in the Breast.

Albert Woehler of 2024 Vest avenue was severely cut in the breast and left arm Sunday night in a quarrel at Twenty-first and Salisbury streets, in which Henry and Louis Kampf of 4214 Blow street, Louis Steffan of 4214 North Twentieth street and Charles Ackerman of 2017 North Twentieth street took part.

Miss Durgin lived with her father, S. E. Durgin, at Mrs. Cook's boarding house on Sheridan and Garrison avenues. Jackson also boarded there and had a room adjoining Miss Durgin's. The young couple were engaged and it is said, the marriage was to take place in April. The breath of scandal, however, caused a premature marriage last Wednesday evening, and has cast a blight over the lives of the young bride and groom. The whole story, as told by Mr. Durgin, is that his daughter was indiscreet enough to have been seen in Jackson's room. The landlady is charged with having whispered it abroad and caused the vommotion which followed in church circles. The resignations of Miss Durgin and Jackson were asked for by J. D. Doyle, Chairman of the Board of Stewards and leader of the choir. They were given, and their places filled by other persons.

What further action will be taken against Miss Durgin as Vice-President of the Epworth League remains to be seen. Mirs. Cook, the landlady, left town for her health. Mr. Jackson and his bride left the Cook house the day after the wedding and installed themselves at 300 Olive street. #### ABCHITECTS' EXHIBITION.

Beautiful Display of Pencil, Ink and Water Color Drawings.

The third annual exhibition by the St. Louis Chapter of the American Institute of Anarchists in the Museum of Fine Arts, will continue until March 20. The draw-March 20. On Sunday afternoon the gal-leries will be free to the public. The drawlngs and designs are arranged in three of the picture galleries. A new feature is the display of examples of applied art, such as is used by the architects in decorat-ing the interior of buildings. The exhibiing the interior of buildings. The exhibition made by the architects consists chiefly of framed drawings in pencil, pen and ink, water color and of photographs of projected work and of work that has recently been accomplished. The new Union Station is well illustrated by a beautiful collection of photographs, and a few drawings. There is a fine water color drawings. There is a fine water color drawing by Fleury of the interior of the City Hall. Mr. Link, the architect of the new station, is also represented by pen drawings of designs for private residences.

One of the best water color drawings in the collection represents a portion of Olive street in the region of Eighth street.

The buildings shown are the new Union Trust building, designed by Messrs. Adler, Sullivan and Ramsey, and a new building by the same firm to be placed on the northess toorner.

by the same firm to be placed on the northeast corner.

A very clever pencil sketch of the large fire-place in the banquet hall of the St. Nicholas is also shown by this firm. The work of Messrs Eames and Young and of Mr. E. A. Manny is characterized by simplicity of line and mass.

Residences for Messrs. George L. Allen, L. Chauvenet, Charles F. Bates, W. H. Thornburgh and others are very attractive by reason of their beautiful proportions, and the drawings are daintily rendered in water color. and the drawings are daintily rendered in water color.

Two sets of drawings for the new Washington State Capitol are exhibited by Mr. Mann and Mr. Manny. There is considerable originality in Mr. McArdle's idea for the proposed St. Btephen's Mission. The design is based upon the Spanish-American style of architecture and is very cleverly suggested in water color.

Another design for a residence for Prof. Ives by the same architect is also very original. Mr. Rosenhelm exhibits a large bromide reproduction of the new Columbian Cibb.

bromide reproduction of the new Club.

Some excellent water colors and pen and ink drawings, made last summer in Europe, are exhibited by Mr. Mullgardt. A number of excellent water colors and pen drawings are shown by Messrs. Stewart, McClure and Mullgardt.

ART IN ST. LOUIS.

Exhibition of It's Progress for the Past Half Century. The history of art in St. Louis for the past fifty years will be crowned in one grand ex-hibit by the Art-Union "Palette," 1820-1824 Chouteau avenue, March 12 to 25. The exhibition will include all the best paintings and sculptures produced by St. Louis artists during the half century. Among them will be works by Wimar, de Franca, Tracy, Cooper, Chase, Schultz, Howe, Subitt, Roet-ter, Bussell Canach Hames, and others Cooper, Chase, Schutz, Howe, Subitt, Roetter, Russell, Cane# Haméy and others.

Circular letters have been mailed to all interested and over 300 paintings and sculptures have already been secured. The ambition of the union is to make the exhibit complete, but carefully selected, thus rendering it a true representation of the first afty years of progress of art in this city.

The galleries of the Palette are spacious, well lighted and fire-proof, and no pains will be spared to make the affair a success. The management have guaranteed a safe return, free of charge, for all works of art loaned, and to insure all at their full value against fire or other damage.

Those in charge of the exhibition are J. Schumacher, President; Louis Schuchmann, Vice-President; E. Schuchmann, Treasurer; F. Duttlinger, Secretary.

noraing from Hot Springs in the hay box of a stock car which came up over the Iron dountain route. The small-pox scare aused the party to migrate northward, and their departure was accomplished in about as quiet a manner as, it is presumed, a hay-box party could leave St. Louis. In fact, once the "hobo" backs or crawls into his limited quarters and the door is locked a hay-box party could leave St. Louis. In fact, once the "hobo" backs or crawls into his limited quarters and the door is locked on him he can do nothing but remain on his stomach, side or back until released from his uncomfortable position. As a rule the "hobos" do business with the brakeman, who permits them to make the run with him, in this case from Malvern, where the Hot Springs branch taps the main line of the Iron Mountain.

The party arriving Monday presented a woe-begone, dejected appearance. Those who rode in the upper box had to lie on slats with some hay upon them. Without a little cushioning, the "hobos" say, it would have been impossible to stand the joiting of the long ride. As it was their sides showed the impress of the slats, leaving little doubt that the ride was anything but an enjoyable one. To get North was a case of must with the party which arrived to-day, and with such a state of affairs before them the "hobos" did not hesitate to make the journey in a hay box.

During the winter a great many of the "Weary Willies" wander into Hot Springs. They get too much outdoor life, and with the first approach of cold weather rheumatism begins with its twinges. In the free Government bathing houses at the Springs they get relief from this complaint and, accordingly, most of them drift there during the season. The promised race meeting attracted, also, a crowd of touts, stable hands and race-track followers in general, and the failure of the meeting left them "on their uppers."

Of the "hobos" arriving Monday a race track tout said half the party made the journey in the lower hay box. "They have no slat-bottomed bed down there," said he, "but I prefer an upper berth. In either place it is about all one can do to turn about. We have to lay quiet all the way, and it gets mighty monotonous after we have been on the road a few hours. I made the trip from Hot Springs to Malvern, and it cost me the other two bits for a berth in the hay-box from that point of the road and they are ly life to year and the d

"I was informed that it was absolutely necessary to do this before taking a berth in the hay-box after a sojourn at the Springs. The bathing opens the pores of one's skin, and I was told that I would surely catch cold during the night ride unless I got an alcohol rub-down.

Thomas Lyons, who was struck by a base sall bat in the hands of James Garvey durng a quarrel over a game of ball in a vacant ot at Main and Angelica streets Sunday lot at Main and Angelica streets Sunday afternoon, lies in a critical-condition at the City Hospital. The base of his skull is badly fractured and depressed to such an extent that pieces of the bone press against the brain. Dr. Marks says that an operation will be necessary for the removal of the depressed pieces of bone.

Lyons is 24 years old, single and lives at 22 East Angelica street. Garvey is 16 years old and resides at 4545 North Broadway.

MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

The literary and musical entertainment of Union Chapter, Epworth League, at Union M. E. Church, postponed Feb. 25, will take place March 7.

Prof. John Fiske will begin a series of lectures on "American History" in Memorial Hall to-morrow evening. His subject will be "The Elizabethan Sea Kings."

The Todd-DeHoog Disappearance. Mrs. Nancy De Hoog's desertion of her husband and home at Kirkwood has been emphasized by a fleeting temporary return. Her purpose, the securing of her little 5-year-old daughter, was accomplished with the aid of threats to kill her husband. She then disappeared again. Frank Todd, her alleged companion, also returned to secure his clothing, after which he, too, departed once more. By the kindness of neighbors, Todd's deserted wife and three children have so far wanted for nothing.

Mortimer, the English expert, states very positively that the Great Dane Major Mc-Kinley and the St. Bernard Sir Bevidere outclass anything in England and, for that matter, on the continent. American dogs are superior to anything bred in Europe. Sir Bedivere belongs to the Argyle kennels at Little Rock and is famous as a prize-winner. Last year he beat Aristocrat and Fernwood Bruce. These dogs will all be seen at the Chicago show.

BROWNS LEAVE TO-NIGHT.

Nearly All of the Players Will Go on the

A large part of the Browns' team will pull out to-night for Little Rock to begin the Southern practice trip, and will open at Little Rock to-morrow, playing there the games scheduled both for Hot Springs and Little Rock.

Those players who are now in the city and will form the party to-night are Connor, Ely. Dowd, Hogan, McDougall, Staley, Breitenstein, Twineham and Lyons. They will be joined at Little Rock by Miller and Cooley, who have been at Hot Springs for some time. Quinn will leave here about March 30. March 20.

Ehret, who was signed Saturday in Pittsburg for the Browns by Connie Mack, is ex-Station.

St. Teresas, Champions.

St. Teresa's Sodality foot ball team has again won the Sodality League champion-ship. The St. Teresas have met and de-feated every team in the Sodality League and have never suffered defeat, not even allowing a goal to be scored against them. allowing a goal to be scored against them. In yesterday's practice game at the college grounds between the St. Teresas and a strong picked team the St. Teresas, although short two regular players, played a very strong game and succeeded in preventing the picked team from scoring. The champions of the Sodality League, who hold the championship of St. Louis, will play the Diels' team, champions of the Lindell League, next Sunday at Sportsman's Park for the championship of St. Louis.

Sporting Notes.

Fitzsimmons has written Corbett asking him to extend the time for the posting of the last part of the side bet owing to the crippled financial condition of the former. Aurora, Ft. Wayne and Lafayette, Ind. have been admitted into the Western Interstate League of Base Ball Clubs.

The Diels defeated the Cycling Clubs in the last of the Lindell Foot Ball League games, thereby winning the pennant.

Six members of the Fastimes took part in the club run to Clayton last Sunday and they found the roads to be in fine condition. The cycling contingent has taken hold of the cycle show to be held at the club-house March 23 and 25 and will push it to a successful end.

Club captains would do well this season to start club runs promptly at the advertised time. The dilatory starting has been one of the main causes of complaint during past seasons and has caused members to stay away.

Missouri now has 676 members At Wednesday's meeting of the State officers the by-laws will be revised and arrangements made to issue a hand-book for general distribution among the riders.

George Easton and Will Gardiner are working like beavers to secure fifty members for the new Century Road Club in time for the formal opening of their club-house.
